

Policy Committee Overview

Aerospace and Defense Committee

Chairs: James E. Monroe, Monroe Atlantic GmbH / Christian Blume, Lockheed Martin Overseas Services Corporation

Staff Contact: Elijah Wething

The Aerospace and Defense Committee argues for closer transatlantic cooperation in the defense and security sectors. It serves as a forum for facilitating a robust political, governmental, and industrial dialogue on transatlantic aerospace and defense opportunities and issues. The committee's members argue for, among other things, more reliable export regimes and easier market access while closely monitoring the discussion surrounding key defense technologies. The committee's main goal is to raise awareness for the need for stronger, continuous, and open defense cooperation.

Digital Policy Committee

Chairs: Nina Keim, Salesforce.com Germany / Percy Ott, Cisco Systems

Staff Contact: Elijah Wething

The Digital Policy Committee is the voice of AmCham Germany's member companies in the field of telecommunications, internet, and media and aims to create fair competition as well as an innovation- and investment-friendly climate in those markets. Committee issues range from the extension of broadband infrastructure to data protection, digitization, innovation policy, copyright law, and cloud computing. To make its voice heard, the Digital Policy Committee publishes position papers and hosts breakfast discussions, parliamentary evening events, and lunches.

Energy and Climate Committee

Chairs: Christiane Landsberg, Thermo Fisher Scientific / Gabriele Velte, Goodyear Germany

Staff Contact: Juliane Reitzig

The Energy and Climate Committee is the voice of AmCham Germany's members in the energy sector representing both energy producers and energy consumers. It monitors legislative developments in energy policy in Germany and the EU and engages in related political debates. The Committee advocates for frameworks that encourage investment and innovation and reflect a balanced approach based on ecological and economic considerations such as security of supply. On the national level and in the context of the German Energiewende, the committee advocates for a consistent and competitive sustainable energy policy that strengthens Germany as a business location. Recognizing that international cooperation is critical to overcoming energy and climate challenges, the committee provides a platform for transatlantic discourse on energy and climate issues.

Healthcare and Life Sciences Committee

Chairs: Dr. Gerd Kräh, Lilly Deutschland / Dorothee Stamm, Medtronic

Staff Contact: Philipp Mittag

The Healthcare and Life Sciences Committee represents the interests of all healthcare industries that are part of AmCham Germany's membership. Ranging from pharmaceutical research companies to medical technology and diagnostics as well as IT firms and the consumer health sector, the committee's mission is to speak with one voice for the entire healthcare sector. It addresses current topics and engages in stakeholder discussions on the future of the German healthcare market.

Tax Committee

Chairs: Kai Strüngmann, United Parcel Service Deutschland / Margarete Schätzler, PwC

Staff Contact: Juliane Reitzig

The Tax Committee monitors debates on taxation issues in Germany and provides detailed, constructive suggestions to German policymakers to improve tax regulations. The committee is the strongest tax-focused lobbying group of inbound investors in Germany and maintains good relations across all parties with political leaders and administrative officials at the regional and federal levels. These connections form the basis for monitoring potential upcoming changes and opportunities emerging from the administration in Berlin. Through ongoing meetings, committee members maintain a continuous dialogue with numerous representatives from the German Ministry of Finance (BMF) as well as with political stakeholders from the German Parliament.

Trade and Strategic Competitiveness Committee

Chairs: Dr. Christina Gommlich, BASF / Benjamin Sokolowski, Qualcomm

Staff Contact: Philipp Mittag

AmCham Germany's Trade and Strategic Competitiveness Committee serves as a platform to articulate and convey the Chamber's position on transatlantic trade policy. The committee discusses both geopolitical and geo-economic developments and their implications for Germany, the EU and the U.S., as well as the competitiveness of the transatlantic region. Supply chain disruptions, dynamic political developments between Western democracies and China, as well as current U.S. and EU industrial policy initiatives highlight the multiple competitiveness challenges facing AmCham Germany's globally active member companies. The Trade and Strategic Competitiveness Committee combines AmCham Germany members' know-how with the Chamber's extensive network and experience in handling transatlantic trade and investment policy. By integrating the competencies and perspectives of both U.S. and German member companies, the Trade Committee plays a vital role in the Chamber's engagement in the transatlantic trade discourse. The committee maintains strong ties with decision-makers in Berlin, Brussels, and Washington, D.C.
