

Daniel Andrich will be AmCham Germany's new General Manager

As of November 1, 2020, Daniel Andrich will take on the position as full-time General Manager at AmCham Germany

Berlin, September 15, 2020 – The selection committee of the American Chamber of Commerce in Germany (AmCham Germany) has concluded the selection process for filling its management position and has selected Daniel Andrich as the new General Manager.

Daniel Andrich has served as President and Chief Executive Officer of the Representative of German Industry and Trade (RGIT) in Washington, DC, since July 2016. In that position, he has promoted transatlantic economic relations and represented the interests of German businesses in Washington, DC. Previously, from 2008 to 2016, Andrich worked for the Federation of German Industries (BDI) as Senior Policy Advisor for Global Governance and Trade Promotion in Berlin. Additionally, from 2013 onwards, he worked as personal advisor to the former BDI President, Ulrich Grillo. In 2012, Andrich had already worked as Senior Policy Advisor and Visiting Fellow at the Representative of German Industry and Trade (RGIT) in Washington, DC. Andrich obtained his Magister Artium in political science at the Westfälische Wilhelms-Universität Münster.

"We are extremely pleased to have gained an experienced transatlanticist to fill the management position at AmCham Germany," says Frank Sportolari, President of AmCham Germany. "AmCham Germany will benefit enormously from Andrich's expertise, which he has gained during his previous professional stations," adds Sportolari.

Andrich is succeeding Eveline Metzen, who joined Google on July 1, 2020 as Director, Government Affairs and Public Policy for Germany, Austria and Switzerland.
