E Visa Background

Section A - Treaty Traders (E-1)

The treaty trader visa is designed for firms or individuals who develop substantial trade between the United States and a country with which the United States maintains a treaty of commerce and navigation. Germany is such a country.

In order to qualify for a treaty trader visa, the U.S. office of the company must engage in substantial international trade, a majority (at least 51%) of which must be between the United States and the country of the applicant's nationality. Trade involves the actual exchange of goods, monies or services and is generally demonstrated to exist by the number of transactions as well as by the dollar value of the transactions.

In general, treaty trader visas are available to managers, executives, or individuals with specific skills which are not generally available in the U.S. workforce and which make their presence essential to the efficient operation of the enterprise. Unskilled manual workers, clerical workers, or middle/lower-level management personnel do not qualify for employee visas.

Trade in goods includes both exports and imports between the U.S. and the treaty country. Trade in monies and services has been interpreted to include international banking, insurance, transportation, tourism, communications, data processing, advertising, accounting, design and engineering, and management consulting, among others.

Applicants for treaty trader status will be required to document the value, volume and frequency of the U.S.-treaty country trade, and to show that it is substantial relative to the nature of their firm's business.

EXAMPLE:

- (1) A U.S. company has been set up or is actively in the process of being set up, at least 50% of the ownership is German (stock held by German nationals who are permanent resident aliens of the U.S. cannot be included in this 50%), the U.S. operation is engaged in substantial foreign imports or exports, and at least 51% of the imports or exports represent trade with Germany. This company would be likely to qualify for E visa registration based on its trade in goods. In deciding whether the volume of trade is substantial, the consular officer will consider the type of operation, as well as the volume and number of transactions.

- (2) A U.S. company or branch office has been set up or is actively in the process of being set up and at least 50% of its ownership is German. The U.S. operation is engaged in providing services to a substantial number of U.S. clients relating to computer software which has been developed abroad. At least 51% of the imported software originates in Germany. This company would be likely to qualify for E visa registration based on its trade in services.
- (3) A German-owned bank sets up a wholly-owned subsidiary or branch office in the United States. The bank's U.S. operation engages in a substantial number of financial transactions, at least 51% of which are with U.S. citizens. This bank would be likely to qualify for E visa registration based on its trade in monies.

Section B - Treaty Investors (E-2)

The treaty investor visa is designed for firms or individuals who invest or are in the active process of investing substantial funds in the U.S. Only individuals who are nationals of countries for which there exist treaties of commerce and navigation with the U.S. can qualify for this visa. Germany is such a country.

The German investing firm or individual must make a substantial investment in the U.S. "Substantiality" is defined in the treaty visa questionnaire. In addition, the investment must not be marginal, a term used to describe an investment which will generate little more than a liveable income for the investor and his family. The company or individual requesting treaty investor registration must be in a position to develop and direct the enterprise in the United States, which requires control of at least 50% of the U.S. enterprise.

Applicants for treaty investor status will be required to document the monies and/or goods invested in the United States as well as the ownership and anticipated revenues of the investment, and the number of U.S. and other employees.

Individual investors and executive/managerial personnel may be found eligible for the treaty investor visa. Other employees qualify only if they possess specialist skills which are not readily available on the U.S. labor market and if they are essential to the U.S. operations of the investment enterprise. Technical personnel may qualify if they are required for the establishment of the enterprise, or for the training and supervision of technicians employed in manufacturing, maintenance, or repair functions, or for the continuous development of product improvements and quality control. Low-level managers and employees who perform routine substantive job duties do not qualify.

In the past, treaty investor registration has been granted to a variety of firms including manufacturers, advertising agencies, legal partnerships, computer consultants, restaurants, property developers, and many others.

EXAMPLE:

An investment in a U.S. business has been made, or is in the process of being made, which the treaty country firm or individual plans to develop and direct. To qualify for E-2 registration, the investment must be of an active type whose purpose is to create profit. The investment must be substantial and should be beneficial to the American economy or the local community by providing jobs for American workers. Passive investments, such as speculation in stocks, bonds, or real estate, do not qualify.

No guarantee can be made that any visa will be issued until a consular-officer has considered an application. PHOTO REQUIREMENTS FOR U.S. VISAS

Visa applicants must submit one photo. The following minimum requirements must be met or your application will not be processed. Please see the paragraphs below for more details.

1. The photographs must not be older than six months.
2. The photographs must measure 5 cm x 5 cm.
3. The photographs of the applicant's head must be between 2.5 cm and 3.5 cm when measured vertically.
4. The photographs must have a white or off-white background.
5. The applicant must face the camera directly, with both ears visible.

The photograph of the visa applicant must be an unmounted full face photo, taken within the past six months. A "full face" photo is one in which the applicant is facing the camera directly. The applicant should not be looking down or to either side, and the face should cover about 50 percent of the area of the photo. Although variations in hair styles and in head coverings (see discussion below) make it difficult to rigorously define the term "face," in general, the head of the applicant, including both face and hair, should be shown from crown of the head to tip of chin on top and bottom and from hair line side-to-side. It is preferable that ears be exposed. The key requirement is that the photograph clearly identify the applicant.

The photograph should measure 2 inches square (roughly 50 mm square) with the head centered in the frame. The head (measured from the top of the hair to the bottom of the chin) should measure between 1 inch to 1 3/8 inches (25 mm to 35 mm) with the eye level between 1 1/8 inch to 1 3/8 inches (28 mm and 35 mm) from the bottom of the photo. Photos may be either in color or black and white and must be taken against a white or off-white background. Photos should be printed without borders. Photos should be stapled or glued to Form DS-156, Nonimmigrant Visa Application. If the photograph is stapled, the staples should be placed as far away as possible from the applicant's face. Photos taken in front of busy, patterned, or dark backgrounds will not be accepted.

Head coverings and hats are only acceptable due to religious beliefs, and even then, may not obscure any portion of the face of the applicant. Sunglasses or other accessories detracting from the face as defined above are not acceptable unless required for medical reasons (an eye patch, for example). A photograph depicting a person wearing a traditional facemask or veil that does not permit adequate identification is not acceptable. Photos of military, airline or other personnel wearing hats are not acceptable. Photographs of applicants wearing tribal, national costume or other headgear not specifically religious in nature are not acceptable.

Since a separate visa is issued to each qualified applicant, an individual photo is required in all cases. Group photos are not acceptable.

TREATY TRADER AND TREATY INVESTOR VISA REQUIREMENTS

Section 101(a)(15)(E) of the Immigration and Nationality Act provides nonimmigrant visa status for a national of any of the countries with which the United States maintains an appropriate treaty of commerce and navigation, who is coming to the United States to carry on substantial trade, including trade in services or technology, principally between the United States and the treaty country, or to develop and direct the operations of an enterprise in which the national has invested, or is actively in the process of investing, a substantial amount of capital. The requirements for Treaty Trader and Treaty Investor visas are further elaborated in 22 CFR Part 41.51. These requirements are summarized below:

Requirements for a Treaty Trader (E-1) nonimmigrant visa are:

1. The applicant must be a national of a treaty country.
2. The trading firm for which the applicant is coming to the United States must have the nationality of the treaty country.
3. The international trade must be "substantial" in the sense that there is a sizable and continuous volume of trade.
4. The trade must be principally between the United States and the treaty country, which means that more than 50% of the international trade involved must be between the United States and the country of the applicant's nationality.
5. Trade means the international exchange of goods, services and technology. The item of trade, and title of that item, must pass from one party to the other in exchange for consideration.
6. The applicant must be employed in a supervisory or executive capacity, or possess highly specialized skills essential to the successful and efficient operation of the commercial enterprise. Ordinarily skilled or unskilled workers generally do not qualify.

Requirements for a Treaty Investor (E-2) nonimmigrant visa are:

1. The investor, either a real or corporate person, must be a national of a treaty country.
2. The investment must be substantial. It must be sufficient to ensure the successful operation of the enterprise. The percentage in investment required for a low-cost business enterprise is generally higher than the percentage of investment required for a high-cost enterprise.
3. The investment must be in a real operating commercial enterprise. Speculative or idle investment does not qualify. Uncommitted funds in a bank account or similar security are not considered an investment.
4. The investment may not be marginal. It must have the capacity to generate significantly more income than just to provide a living to the investor and family, or it must have a significant economic impact in the United States.
5. The investor must have control of the funds, and the investment must be at risk in the commercial sense. Loans secured with the assets of the investment enterprise are not considered to be at risk.
6. The investor must be coming to the United States solely to develop and direct the enterprise. If the applicant is not the principal investor, he or she must be employed in a supervisory, executive, or highly specialized skills capacity. Ordinarily skilled and unskilled workers do not qualify.
